The starting line

In order to ensure a safe, smooth start, runners in the individual marathon will line up to start the race in blocks of runners based on finish times or your personal best times recorded in their applications, regardless of whether they are registered competitors or general competitors. Do not submit a finish time largely different from actual running ability. Otherwise this may lead to serious problems in regards to safety.
Participants who have not noted their finish times will begin the race in the last block of runners.
Two-person marathon relay runners will start the race at fixed intervals.

Attire

Registered participants should select wear reflecting their status as competitive runners. Other participants should refrain from wearing anything that would be deemed to be inappropriate at a sporting event, or any attire that other runners and supporters would find offensive or dangerous.
Please note that, on the day of the race, runners may be stopped from participating in the race at the organizers' discretion.

Miscellaneous

- (1) Participants are to train sufficiently and receive a medical exam and take other appropriate measures to assure that they are in top physical condition prior to participating in the event.
- (2) Participants are not to wear clothing or other items on the event grounds (including on the course) bearing designs, trademarks or advertisements with company or product names for advertising purposes.
- (3) The organizers will provide for the transportation from the starting line to the finish line of the luggage of the leading runners in the individual and two-person marathon relay marathons. Only items that can fit into the pouch of a handbag that is provided at registration can be accepted. Arrival of the handbag may be delayed due to road or traffic conditions en route to the finish line.
- (4) No parking is provided at the event site so participants are to commute by public transit. Depending on road and traffic conditions, public transit may not be on time. Please note that the organizers cannot assume any responsibility for this.
- (5) If some emergency, such as an accident or fire, should occur during the event there is the possibility that emergency vehicles will need to pass through the area. If this should be the case, the event will be temporarily suspended in accordance with the directions of the staff.
- (6) In addition to the points noted above, participants are to act in accordance with any instructions regarding items related to the event provided by the organizers.
- (7) Formal receipts for charges
 - Payment by credit card
No formal receipt will be issued. Please refer to your credit card company account statement and invoice.
